"THE AIR HAWK"

Synopsis

In old Mexico, across the border of Arizona, a horseman is pursued by desperadoes, headed by Robert MacLean. The mysterious horseman jumps into an aeroplane and away.

Across the desert, John Ames, Superintendent of the El Serrano Platinum Mine receives word from the owner that unless the thieves who have been stealing the platinum are apprehended, he will lose his job and be imprisoned. He and his daughter Edith suspect MacLeod. Edith is in love with Al Parker, a mining engineer who lives in the village. When MacLeod offers to buy the mine, and thus relieve Ames of all responsibility if Edith will marry him, both she and her father refuse his offer.

Ames knows that there is a secret passage from the mine which the thieves have been using, and one evening when Edith and Al are out walking, he attempts to find it. MacLeod's men have been trailing him, and they kill him.

MacLeod tries to avert suspicion to the mysterious stranger who is known as "The Air Hawk", but Edith will not believe that he is the guilty man, because he has aided her many times when she was in danger.

One day MacLeod gives a fiesta for the Mexican natives, and Edith is hostess. He announces his forthcoming marriage to Edith. This infuriates her. She slaps him. He is about to attack her, when The Air Hawk swoops down, saves Edith and fights a battle of swords with MacLeod. MacLeod is wounded, and the Air Hawk and Edith make for the plane.

Later, Edith secures sufficient evidence to point to MacLeod as the guilty man. She rides to the army post with the evidence; MacLeod sends his men after her, and she is captured. Again the mysterious Air Hawk comes to her assistance; she gives him the papers and he delivers them to the army post for her. MacLeod takes her prisoner, and places her in the cabin of his plane, and makes away.

The Air Hawk follows, and a great fight takes place in the air between the two planes. The Air Hawk jumps from his plane into MacLeod's, and the two men have a fearful battle in the clouds. The Air Hawk is the victor, however, and drops MacLeod. He forces the pilot to ride to the army post, and there, to his amazement, he discovers Edith in the cabin.

It is discovered that the Air Hawk is a secret agent of the government, sent out to "get" MacLeod and his men, who concealed identity during the day by using the name of "Al Parker".

As soon as he has been killed, his gang is arrested. The platinum the rightful owners.
and returned to The Air Hawk and find happiness
